

WHY ENGLISH? (AND WHY LANGUAGE MATTERS)

No German version exists. Here's why:

PRECISION: English offers unmatched scientific terminology for neuroscience, systems theory, behavioral economics.

DIFFERENTIATION: German excels at philosophical depth but lacks nuanced vocabulary for emerging interdisciplinary frameworks.

GLOBAL REACH: Arabic may be most profound for relational/spiritual concepts, but inaccessible to most audiences.

I am German, this isn't elitism. It's pragmatism: clarity over mystique, precision over poetry, function over form.

